CASE STUDY SONIA CARDOZO

Sonia Cardozo, 20, completed her Advanced Apprenticeship in Business and Administration in July 2018, working with one of the largest and busiest departments at Guy's Hospital.

Sonia, who won the Charity, Voluntary and Public services award at the Asian Apprenticeship Awards 2018, says: "My very first time to leave my country: India, and my very first-time to step into the UK was 26th October 2015.

A 17-year-old in a totally new continent, new country, new city. I have always been a very ambitious person, and an extremely hardworking student with desire to work in the health care public sector; my path was seeming clear. Thus, I was aiming to get into a university for a qualification and also work part-time so I could support my family, however, my financial status challenged my dream. Since I hadn't lived enough years in this new country, I was not eligible for a loan. It felt like an absolute dead end. This resulted in me stepping into work life directly. I began working in a supermarket to help my family out, but my heart and mind did not agree with the path I chose. This made me research constantly, hoping to find a path I fully agreed with.

"I loved the concept of learning on the job."

That's when I came across a foreign word, like this foreign country and it was 'Apprenticeships'. I absolutely loved the concept. It was like a perfect match as it complemented both my ambition and finance. I loved the concept of learning on the job.

I was extremely impressed by Hawk Training, based on their reviews, case studies of apprentices, awards and recognitions. I immediately got myself enrolled with them and applied for a level 2 Apprenticeship in Business and Administration at a GP surgery. After completing this, it was clear - this was the right path for me. So, I immediately got into a

EMPOWERING PEOPLE TO ACHIEVE THEIR POTENTIAL THROUGH AN ENRICHED LEARNING EXPERIENCE THAT KNOWS NO BOUNDARIES

level 3 Apprenticeship in Business and Administration at Guy's and St Thomas' via Hawk Training as a progression route and completed it in July 2018.

During my apprenticeship journey, I have gone from working in reception, to administration, to coordinating clinics, to contributing in service improvement, and now to a secretarial position at Guy's Hospital. I have fulfilled my desire to work in a healthcare setting: I have worked alongside nurses, doctors, patients, only from a different perspective; I have gained qualifications while working, only through a different system.

During my level 3 journey at Guy's, I grabbed ample opportunities: one of the major highlights during my apprenticeship was participating in the National Apprenticeship Week 2018 in the 'Back to the Floor' event. The Director of Operations for Essentia services came and visited me at my workplace and observed me performing my duties. The personal feedback from him was excellent, which was a huge accomplishment. His feedback was circulated amongst my manager and tutors and I received positive appreciation from them. The encouraging response from everyone has driven my motivation to higher levels, as well as boosted my confidence and made me believe in myself, to aim higher and accomplish more.

Also, I was an advocate for apprenticeships by being asked to attend a high-profile Business Planning event with senior leadership teams, including the Director of Workforce, and assisted her with poster judging panel. I was invited and attended the apprentice forum in July 2018. I was one of the key members in planning and executing our graduation event. And most importantly, along my journey I gained skills, experience, training and knowledge that I can further use to enlighten my path towards more success ahead.

What better pathway could I choose than an apprenticeship? I would definitely recommend an apprenticeship to anyone seeking to kick start their career, gain both a salary and a qualification, and the best thing is without incurring any debt.

Apprenticeships have proven to be a great ladder for individuals who are passionate and want to move up in their respective fields. They open doors to participate and represent yourself, your team, department, employer, on amazing platforms such as the National Apprenticeship Awards and Asian Apprenticeship Awards.

I truly feel the warmth of accomplishment. All thanks to apprenticeships and all the people who support and work hard for its success."

"I would definitely recommend an apprenticeship to anyone seeking to kick start their career"

CMI STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIP

The agreement between the Chartered Management Institute (CMI) and Hawk Training will see over 500 managers earn professional qualifications up to the internationally-recognised Chartered Manager status.

As part of the agreement, Hawk offers learners CMI-backed management qualifications at Level 3, Level 5 and Level 7, as well as the new breed of employer-designed Trailblazer management apprenticeships. Students on the CMI dual-accredited management courses will also gain CMI membership and access to Management Direct, the CMI's online portal containing more than 15,000 study resources which is used by tens of thousands of learners every year.

“7 in 10 employers fail to train first-time managers”

According to CMI research, 7 in 10 employers fail to train first-time managers, creating a problem known in business as ‘the accidental manager’. A 2016 report by Investors in People found that poor management costs the UK £84bn a year in lost productivity.

Ann Francke, chief executive of CMI, said “the agreement (with Hawk Training) will help many more employers develop their management teams: In a tough economic climate there is no doubt that developing world-class management and leadership is essential to a company’s growth, and I urge employers to make sure that they support their managers to become chartered. We're delighted to be working with Hawk Training to give 500 managers the opportunity to gain the professional skills that will benefit their employers, as well as their own career development."

Our managing director, Crawford Knott added, "We're delighted to be partnered with CMI.

"Being a strategic partner supports us in our ongoing commitment to deliver innovative leadership and management programmes that make a real difference to individuals and their organisations. Our shared values of passion and professionalism provide an excellent foundation for a long-term relationship with CMI.

"Management is always needed in an organisation, and accredited courses are particularly important when addressing the phenomenon of the accidental manager. Our dual accreditation provides pathways for existing employees who are becoming upskilled. With the introduction of the Apprenticeship Levy, many employers are also looking to position their levy spend on the development of their senior talent"

According to study's Chartered Managers add up to £362,000 of value to their employers through greater performance. Four in five (80%) of Chartered Managers report that professional accreditation has benefited their careers.

CMI has led the way in developing a suite of trailblazing management apprenticeships with a 40-strong group of employers. These start from Level 3 (team leader) and Level 5 (operations manager) through to Chartered Manager Degree Apprenticeship. The Senior Leader Master's Degree Apprenticeship gives employers the option to upskill up to executive and C-suite level. CMI is a Skills Funding Agency-registered apprentice assessment organisation.

Management Apprenticeships Flex Assess Model

TRAINING

Introduction

In 2019, Hawk Training adapted its curriculum delivery for the Level 3 Team Leader/ Supervisor and Level 5 Operations Manager apprenticeship standards in response to employer, apprentice and tutor feedback and in conjunction with our awarding body CMI.

We developed the flexible assessment model (Flex Assess) based on the concept of a spiral curriculum, enabling learners to evidence their application of knowledge, skills and behaviours whilst simultaneously achieving a CMI certificate or diploma without the need to write several assignments. It supports learners making the link from theory to practice because examples are used from their workplace.

Innovation

The Flex Assess approach sees the apprenticeship standard broken down into various learning topics. Each of the topics provide apprentices with resources to develop knowledge and understanding of key leadership and management concepts before setting tasks to allow them to apply knowledge through work-based tasks and activities. Upon completion of the tasks, apprentices present their work-based evidence to their tutor for review as part of a professional discussion.

Each task is mapped primarily to the apprenticeship standard and questions adapted to ensure sufficient coverage against relevant CMI certificate or diploma units.

“Flexible assessment means programmes are now much more accessible to our staff because of the noticeable absence of lengthy written assignments, apprentices receive ‘real-time’ feedback on their work/contributions as most is assessed by means of professional discussion. The time apprentices spend with tutors has resulted in increased coaching and training as opposed to reviewing and providing feedback on written work. I believe this new approach is more vocational and compatible with the concept of work-based learning programmes/apprenticeships.”

Alison Ford, People and Culture Lead, London Borough of Hounslow

Making the Programme Sustainable and Maximising Impact

As managers, leadership and management apprentices are often 'time poor', this innovative approach allows apprentices to work towards the achievement of their standards and CMI qualifications in 'bite-size chunks'.

This reduces the number of learners who are downgraded to certificates because of the simplified transference of information and skills, knowledge and behaviour, this allows learners to reach higher levels of understanding.

The use of a spiral curriculum ensures that learning is logically sequenced, and apprentices develop at the appropriate point in their learning journey, facilitating reinforcement of prior learning. The absence of assignments means tutors have more time to spend working with apprentice's one-to-one to teach and coach them.

Evidence review logs remove the need for completing lengthy and complex mapping documents – allowing IQAs and IEPAs to quickly locate key evidence.

Using professional discussion allows tutors to use questioning techniques and delve into application of knowledge, skills and behaviours of the learners as opposed to 'bouncing' assignments back and forth with feedback which is an important time-saving factor for these learners.

Working with CMI, we have developed a model which can and will evolve with the changing needs of the workplace and be sustainably developed as and when the apprenticeship standard changes.

The Benefit to Learners

Since the roll out of the Flex Assess model, we have seen an improvement in learner retention reaching 94%, thus contributing to delivering more competent and able leaders and managers. This is compared to a 70% retention over the year before Flex Assess was introduced.

The nature of discussion means apprentices benefit from 'real time' feedback providing immediate confirmation of knowledge and competence as opposed to the delay that apprentices would experience with written assignments and the possible disconnect that can create in addition to the time saved for learners who no longer are required to deliver lengthy written assignments.
